

Raw observation space: orbital period versus stellar temperature

Rows enter a panel when both variables are observed; reported flux status is overlaid without imputation.

Visual window: 1,500–12,000 K for readability. 10 complete rows with exotic host temperatures fall outside the window; they remain in the dataset for explicit outlier analysis.