

Collinearity weakens individual attribution, not the joint stellar-structure signal

Temperature, radius, and stellar mass trace the same stellar sequence. Ridge regularization redistributes coefficient attribution among correlated variables; the joint block test measures whether the stellar information matters collectively.